0573627347 Although GCA, like most statistical analyses, usually requires adaptation to each specific application, a general approach can be identified. This approach is based on the freely available multivariate Granger causality analysis (MVGC) MATLAB (MathWorks) toolbox, which was designed for applications in neuroscience (Barnett and Seth, 2014). The process starts with the recording of time-series data, either during steady-state conditions or while a task is being performed.
