effect of mechanically simulated hail on photosynthesis dark respiration and transpiration of apple leaves

effect of mechanically simulated hail on photosynthesis dark respiration and transpiration of apple leaves with the diaphragm was simulated by motion of the entire phantom in the vertical (craniocaudal) direction (Fig. 2B). This approximation was used because phantom geometry allowed substitution of motion of the entire phantom for motion of the heart, diaphragm, and abdominal compartment within the phantom's shell.

In conclusion, aerosol delivery depends on the nebulizer type, position, and bias flow during simulated adult and pediatric mechanical ventilation. With bias flow, placement of the vibrating-mesh nebulizer and jet nebulizer prior to the humidifier delivered more aerosol than placement at the Y-piece.
